

ABSTRACT

A set top box (120), to which a printer (130) is connected, includes: a reception unit (121) to receive update data for updating a firmware of the printer and a display content which includes a 5 description indicating that the update data is to be printed; a display data generation unit (122) to generate display data for displaying the display content on the TV (123); a remote control reception unit (125) to receive a print command for the display content; and a print output unit (127) to output, to the printer (130), the update 10 data, as data to be printed, when the remote control reception unit (125) receives the print command.